I suspect I really need a framed print of these photos
 (<https://www.livejournal.com/away?to=http%3A//dailycoyote.blogspot.com/2008/03/corn-spaz.html>).

This reminds of the Caddo story about Coyote turning into a corn mill.

Coyotes should know better than to do what rabbits tell them

I saw those pics of Charlie earlier today and thought of you. There are so many pics of Charlie I'd love to have as prints!

How sweet! How's the elbow? Are you not posting because you're happy or because you're miserable?

I posted Sunday and Monday and today!!!!

I'm fine. Elbow is... acceptable. Shoulder is... sort of acceptable. Bah.

You haven't been quite as chatty as usual, you have to admit. I hope the joints become better than acceptable soon.

You're one of the ones who told me to get a girlfriend!

Hey, it's the origin of the corn dog!

heh heh heh heh.

She said "corn dog."

Also, there's backstory to those legends. If Coyote did what Rabbit told him in the first place, Rabbit wouldn't have to keep up with those little lessons. g

You're a much smarter Coyote than that one. If he'd offered to make cornbread, the women would have brought him the cornmeal.

Rabbit is mean.

Does this mean I should bring you cornbread tomorrow?

We could have a cornbread bake-off. I'll show you mine if you'll show me yours.

Well, there goes my secret weapon.

You're on.

Hey, Friday night chili festival? Your place? Or T&D's? Bring the not-a-boy, if we're still allowed to speak his name.

If I tell the Cowboy now, he might even arrange to not be out collecting scalps.

We're always up for hosting. Also always up for scaring Wabbit's neighbors.

Cowboy has Opinions about chili, as I recall--make him bring some and prove that Genuine Texas beats all other chilis.

Duke, if you bring anything with eyeballs in it, or other disturbing body parts, we're going to let the Romans have you. g

This is assuming we're all in residence on Friday.

Hmm.

The Cowboy can cook, as I recall. If you don't mind drinking a lot of beer with dinner.

Anyway, he said yes. (!)

I told him he could bring a date. He laughed in my face.

How do you feel about feet?

I've heard pig's feet can be eaten, but it's kind of a bizarre notion.

I've had duck feet. There's no there there. You lick off the sauce...and you're done. There's less meat on them than on a human ear. (Not that I'm excited about eating ears, either...)
